

Bridging Generations

A CAMPAIGN TO CONNECT CHILDREN, SENIORS AND VETERANS AT PERLEY HEALTH

Bridging Generations is a $2 million fundraising campaign by the Perley Health Foundation to expand intergenerational programming at Perley Health and beyond. With community support, our campaign will fund the creation of an innovative, integrated program at a new, partner-led childcare and early education centre at Perley Health.

Young children, Veterans, and seniors will connect,
build relationships, and enrich each other's lives.

THROUGH PERLEY HEALTH'S KNOWLEDGE-SHARING AND REAL-WORLD DEMONSTRATION SITE, OTHER LONG-TERM CARE HOMES WILL LEARN HOW TO CREATE SIMILAR INTERGENERATIONAL PROGRAMS.

Connected Moments

Picture a warm, sunlit room filled with smiles and laughter. In one corner, a Veteran gently guides a child's hand as they look at a photo album, sharing stories of his youth while the child listens with wide eyes.

Across the room, a group of toddlers gathers around a great-grandmother, mesmerized as she reads them a story. Nearby, an educator smiles as she watches a little girl eagerly showing a Grandfather a puzzle she is working on.

A long-retired teacher enters the room and greets a young boy by name. The boy responds with a smile and a hug, happy to see his grand-friend again.

Seniors can enrich the early learning experience in many ways. They can provide patient assistance and warm hugs, prepare engaging activities, and greet children enthusiastically.

Even seniors who prefer less interaction can contribute to the children's joy, perhaps by setting up a surprise pile of leaves for children to jump in or playfully greeting them.

In these small moments of connection, something profound happens: children discover that older adults aren't so different from them, while seniors rediscover the spark of joy that comes from discovery and connection.

THESE MOMENTS ARE FILLED WITH WARMTH, LOVE, AND A DEEP SENSE OF BELONGING—THINGS ESSENTIAL FOR ALL OF US, NO MATTER OUR AGE.

It gives me pleasure and happiness to interact with these little ones and see how happy it makes them. It's nourishing for the soul.

~ Laura Boucher, Perley Health resident

Thriving Together

When young children and seniors spend time together, there is an undeniable and heartwarming feeling for those lucky enough to witness it. While separated by age and life experiences, young children and older adults have so much to offer one another. The simple truth is that everybody wins when younger and older people come together.

Veterans and seniors experience increased energy, engagement, and a renewed sense of purpose, while young children benefit from the social, emotional, and developmental gains of interacting with older adults.

In partnership with Andrew Fleck Children's Services, Perley Health's expanded intergenerational program will integrate therapeutic care and community engagement. It will also set an innovative and adaptable example for other long-term care and Senior Living providers.

Unlike traditional intergenerational programs where children and seniors might only interact occasionally, Perley Health will offer daily connection opportunities, making seniors and Veterans active participants rather than passive observers.

Perley Health residents will engage with children in various ways, from greeting them in the morning to assisting during activities, meal times, and outdoor walks.

With over a century of experience providing high-quality early childhood education, Andrew Fleck Children's Services is a trusted name in Ottawa. Their expertise in creating nurturing and stimulating environments for children makes them the ideal partner for Perley Health's intergenerational program.

This partnership with Perley Health allows us to create meaningful, daily connections between children and seniors. It's a unique opportunity to improve both generations' well-being in joyful, therapeutic, and deeply human ways.

Enhancing Quality of Life

Perley Health's planned expansion of intergenerational programming is not just a childcare initiative but a quality-of-life-enhancing experience that crosses and connects generations.

Many seniors and Veterans face challenges like loneliness, depression, a lost sense of purpose and isolation. Meanwhile, children—bright, curious, and full of life—benefit immensely from the care, attention, and love of those who have decades of life experience to share.

By bringing these two groups together more purposefully and consistently, Perley Health will create a community where shared stories, laughter, and learning flow naturally.

Children and seniors develop bonds that enrich their lives through arts and crafts, shared meals, storytime, and walks on the beautiful Perley Health grounds. Seniors feel valued again and find purpose in these daily interactions, while children gain confidence, empathy, and a broader understanding of the world around them.

In a time when so much of life can feel disconnected, this program will bring people together in the most beautiful and meaningful way possible.

The intergenerational approach is a wonderful component that adds meaningful involvement and joy. Perley Health's leadership and support is an excellent example for other communities to emulate.

CAMPAIGN FUNDS WILL GO TOWARD CREATING PROGRAM ROOMS, ACTIVITY AREAS, AND OUTDOOR SPACES WHERE SENIORS AND CHILDREN CAN ENGAGE IN STRUCTURED AND SPONTANEOUS ACTIVITIES.

Expanding Warmth and Purpose

With your support, the Bridging Generations campaign will raise $2 million to expand and transform Perley Health's intergenerational program. This funding will enable Perley Health to create purpose-built spaces where interactions between seniors, Veterans and children flourish—spaces designed with warmth, accessibility, and community in mind.

With over a century of experience, Andrew Fleck Children's Services will manage and staff the childcare component. At the same time, Perley Health's expertise, enviable reputation and leadership in senior care ensure a seamless and enriching experience for all.

Campaign funds will go toward creating program rooms, activity areas, and outdoor spaces where seniors and children can engage in structured and spontaneous activities.

From crafting and storytelling to gardening and sharing meals, these spaces will be designed to remove barriers and unite the two generations in natural and impactful ways.

Perley Health's childcare program* will run seven days a week, from 6:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. and deliver mutual benefits: Children gain confidence, social awareness, and exposure to different generations. Seniors enjoy a sense of purpose, companionship, and the chance to contribute.

Both groups experience vibrancy and a sense of community through these interactions.

The program will be part of the Canada-wide Early Learning and Child Care program, commonly known as the "$10 per day child care."*

Purpose-built spaces with thoughtful design elements will create a welcoming and inclusive senior environment:

- Wider doorways to accommodate wheelchairs and scooters.
- Comfortable adult-sized furniture.
- Soundproofing and acoustic design.
- An accessible kitchen area for shared activities.
- A retrofitted cubby area where seniors can assist children with outdoor gear.
- Dementia-friendly design principles.
- A wheelchair-accessible washroom.

At Perley Health, caring for Veterans has always been the core of our mission. We have built a community where those who served their country can live with dignity and respect and where their mental, physical, and emotional needs are met through innovative, compassionate care.

Perley Health's intergenerational program is a natural extension of that mission, allowing Veterans to share their stories, wisdom, and skills with the youngest members of our community, the very people that Veterans have protected for generations.

Perley Health's expanded intergenerational model will bring the vibrancy of youth to our campus and create an environment where all generations feel a sense of belonging and connection. We believe this intergenerational care model and its life-enhancing benefits will inspire other long-term care homes and senior living communities across Canada.

Perley Health has always been deeply committed to our Veterans. This program allows us to honour their service uniquely by connecting them with the future generations they helped protect. It's a beautiful continuation of their legacy.

The Power of Relationships

In an increasingly digital and disconnected world, it can be easy to forget how much we need one another. The intergenerational program at Perley Health will serve as a reminder that a caring community is built through interpersonal relationships—through moments of warmth, laughter, understanding and shared purpose.

Seniors who once felt isolated now have another reason to smile each day. Children who may have limited interaction with older adults now see them as trusted friends, companions and sources of wisdom.

But beyond the data, the human stories genuinely show the impact. The friendships, the shared experiences, the smiles—these are the things that make life richer for both young and old.

Success will be measured by the quality of relationships built. This program will succeed when children know seniors by their names and vice versa, underscoring the fostered personal connections.

SENIORS WHO ONCE FELT ISOLATED NOW HAVE ANOTHER REASON TO SMILE EACH DAY.

Meeting Community Challenges

The Bridging Generations campaign also addresses a critical community need in Ottawa: an extreme shortage of accessible, affordable childcare, especially for healthcare workers with irregular hours.

Perley Health's expanded intergenerational program will be integrated with 49 childcare spaces, focusing on serving the children of Perley Health staff. By prioritizing the children of Perley Health staff, especially those with irregular healthcare shifts, this program will address a significant challenge for the healthcare workforce —accessible childcare.

Having exceptional childcare and early education from a trusted provider on-site will make Perley Health a more attractive employer, aiding recruitment and staff retention. Healthcare workers, who often struggle with finding suitable childcare, will benefit from the convenience of having their children close by, contributing to work-life balance and a family-friendly work environment.

The peace of mind that comes with having their children well-cared for nearby will allow staff to focus more fully on their duties. This enhanced focus and reduced stress will directly translate to improved quality of care and a more positive experience for Perley Health's seniors, Veterans and their families.

Our dedicated staff are the heart of Perley Health. By providing them with accessible, high-quality childcare, we're not only supporting their families but also investing in the exceptional care our residents deserve.
